Oysterville Crate Race

Can you walk on water?

Well, maybe you can by stepping on a row of wooden crates. The Oysterville Crate Race is not only a crazy way to take a swim, but a great way to have some fun!

When and Where

August 15 at Clear Lake Landing

Race Rules

For the race, 50 wooden crates are tied together between two piers. The crates float on the water, and racers must balance themselves as they run across the crates as quickly as possible. Those who make it across all 50 crates must turn around and race back to the starting point. The object is to cross as many times as possible without falling off.

What You Need

- joggers
- swimming costume
- good balance
